Geosynthetic reinforcement could very well be utilized in reinforcing the fill material so that global stability can be achieved and post-development works can be started earlier.

Centrifuge model tests need to be performed to understand post-closure deformation behaviour and effectiveness of dynamic compaction. The need and use of geosynthetic reinforcement to improve the stability of landfills are also discussed.